CT Attrib Lite allows the user to select which attributes he wants to show or hide. It is useful if the user wants to select an icon or access rights for a folder, but doesn't want to select the System icon or access rights for the entire computer. It is a pain to tell the System icon or access rights off of all the other icons on your computer. You can easily remove them, but then you can't make any changes to them. CT Attrib Lite for Details: The System icon is of a small grey box, the access rights are of a larger grey box. To remove the access rights or System icon, first select the icon or box you want to delete, then select "CT-Attrib Lite" in the dropdown list. This will make the System box grayed out, so you cannot select it again. CT Attrib Lite requires Java 1.6.0 update 45 or later. You can download it here: Effects of L-lysine-2,3-butanedione monoxime on macromolecular synthesis in isolated perfused rabbit lungs. The effects of L-lysine-2,3-butanedione monoxime (KBM), a potent inhibitor of actomyosin ATPase, on macromolecular synthesis were studied in isolated perfused rabbit lungs. The lungs were perfused in the recirculating mode with a modified Krebs-Henseleit-bicarbonate buffer (pH 7.40, 37 degrees C) with 2.4 mM L-arginine, 3.6 mM L-proline, 0.25 mM L-leucine, 0.5 mM glycerol, and 6 mM glucose (gassed with 95% O₂-5% CO₂). The lungs were then perfused with the buffer containing 2.4 mM L-arginine, 3.6 mM L-proline, 0.25 mM L-leucine, 0.5 mM glycerol, and 6 mM glucose, but with 6 mM lactate as the major metabolite. After equilibration of the lungs with this buffer, KBM (1 mM) or its solvent (0.01% ethanol) was added to

For the first time in eight years, the iPad has been kicked out of the bestseller list, beaten out by Amazon's Kindle Fire. Sales of the 7-inch tablet shot up in the last week, grabbing first place and more than 50 per cent of the bestseller list in the US. The Kindle Fire went top in its first week, but last week Apple's iPad snatched the number one spot. Both devices have been available for less than a month and demand has exploded, with the Kindle Fire already outselling the iPad in many countries. The sudden popularity of the iPad could be an early sign of a new wave of interest in tablets, with analysts predicting that shipments of tablets and smartphones will be boosted by the launch of the iPhone 5 later this year. A new survey carried out by IDC shows that tablet shipments will more than double to 120m units in 2013, up from 58.4m last year. The boom in tablets has been driven by the growth of smartphone sales, which have risen by 21 per cent to more than 600m units. The high-margin sales of Android devices, which start at $200 and can cost up to $1,000, has also helped boost tablet sales, as a number of manufacturers have struggled to turn a profit on the less profitable small screens. But with Apple planning to release its much-anticipated next iPhone later this year, Apple could have its own boost in tablet sales. According to Gartner, tablet shipments are set to rise by 60 per cent in 2013, with Android being the dominant player. However, Apple will continue to be the main driving force in
